1st & 2nd Corinthians

No church of the Lord is without problems. How God's people confront life's challenges will determine their spiritual success or failure. These two epistles were written to assist a problem plagued congregation of the first century, but since human nature remains the same the lessons are just as relevant and helpful for saints in the twenty-first century. Christ's concern and counsel regarding religious unity, church discipline, marriage, divorce and remarriage, the divinely appointed place for miracles, the resurrection, the greater glory of the New Testament over the Old, attitudes toward giving, and more are set forth in both epistles. Time permitting, we will devote detailed attention to each area of study. This is a 2-credit hour class and is required for a certificate.
